The two alleles fail differently, which is what creates two separate therapeutic openings